MORE THAN WORDS

More than words. Words are important in learning, in communicating and in life. Words are constantly used by everyone on an everyday basis in every aspect of life. Words are seen in books, in letters, on signs, and are spoken on the radio, on the television and in public life. At Lycoming College, students experience words as much as the next person. Students use words to talk to each other. They listen to their professors speak words in a lecture and take notes using words. They read books filled with words, write letters to family and loved ones made up of words, listen to the radio, where they hear words put to music.

But there is more than words. And that is what this yearbook is about. The 1993 Arrow is a celebration of the 1992-1993 college year through pictures. The Arrow will use more than words to document the events of the year. The pictures speak for themselves — they capture the events of the year more than words do. As the saying goes, "A picture is worth a thousand words."

LYCOMING COLLEGE IN PICTURES

Lycoming College, founded in 1812, is a coeducational institution that is dedicated to providing learning that can be used for a lifetime — liberal arts and sciences. Nineteen buildings make up Lycoming's campus. The approximately 900 students who live on campus call the eight residence halls their home. Everyday, East Hall, Crever, Rich, Williams, Forest, Wesley, Asbury and Skeath bustle with students. For classes, students head for the Academic Center that also houses the library, the Arena Theatre, planetarium, computer center and art gallery. Wertz Student Center is where one finds the cafeteria, the mailroom, the campus store, and Jack's Corner. Long Hall houses the administrative offices for the college. Other features of Lycoming College are Lamade Gym; a fine arts center; a Mass Communications Center, which houses the radio station; and Clarke Chapel. The Heim Biology and Chemistry Building is one of the finest undergraduate science facilities in the East.

FIRST DAY BACK

The scene — streets lined with cars, parking anywhere they could. Everywhere were boxes, suitcases, crates and furniture. People milled around carrying all their stuff into buildings. The first day of the college year had begun, telling everyone that summer was over. Moving-in day was here and so was one more year at Lycoming.

Looking around it seemed that everyone was very busy hauling belongings to rooms, but many students managed to sneak away to do other things and leave the unpacking for later on. Everywhere students were hugging each other and catching up on four months of summer excitement. Across the quad or down the halls, “hellos” and smiles were exchanged as friends found each other after being separated for months.

But on that day, not everything was that fun. Students had to go to Pennington Lounge to process in, receive schedules, validate ids and pay bills. Again students could sign up to have cable in their rooms. After that, students ventured to the Campus Store to buy all those books for classes that started the next day.

As the day wore down, so did the moving in and students returned to their rooms to do their best to convert four walls into home and prepare themselves for the next fourteen weeks.

HOMECOMING

Homecoming 1992. This year Homecoming reunited alumni from classes as early as 1925, when the school was still Dickinson Seminary. The highlights of the weekend were the annual ox-roast, a golf tournament, the crowning of Homecoming Queen, the football game, where the Warriors beat Moravian 27-7, and the Shirelles concert.

The freezing cold weather did not hinder any Homecoming festivities, especially the Homecoming Football Game. Students, faculty and alumni crowded into the stands to watch the Lycoming College Warriors crush their opponents and to watch, at halftime, the crowning of the 1992 Homecoming Queen. The 1991 Homecoming Queen, Kerri Bloom, turned over her crown to the new Queen. After all the candidates and the court paraded onto the field, Maureen Duffy, escorted by her father, was announced as Lycoming's new Homecoming Queen 1992.

ACTIVITIES ON CAMPUS

The Campus Carnival is an annual event at Lycoming College. Usually it is held on the quad but, this year, it was moved downtown and involved the cooperation of Williamsport Businesses and Penn-Tech. The booths were moved to the center and students journeyed down to partake of all the festivities. College organizations sponsored and ran booths of games and food. Businesses opened their doors to students and offered specials and discounts. Downtown Williamsport was filled with people enjoying themselves, trying their luck at the many games and sampling the food.

Another annual event is the Activities Fair. Organizations, fraternities and sororities set up displays on the quad to inform the student body. Students walked around, stopping at booths that interested them to ask questions and sign up on the mailing lists. The activities fair was a perfect opportunity for organizations to recruit new members and let students know what they are all about. Each organization took full advantage of this opportunity and tried to make their display as exciting and interesting as possible.

STUDENTS OF LYCOMING

Students of Lycoming College cover a wide spectrum of individuals. They come to Lycoming from many different states — a majority come from Pennsylvania and New Jersey but, also, from states like New York, Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, Virginia and others. Lycoming, also, has an international student population with students from a number of foreign countries. Lycoming College attracts students of all ages and the student body is made up of traditional and nontraditional students. The students who live on campus are a more traditional population of students who come to college right out of high school. But Lycoming, also, has a good size commuting population. Students study a variety of subjects and can choose from a number of majors and minors. Besides academic activities, the students get involved in the college community by joining organizations, fraternities or sororities and by playing intercollegiate or intermural sports.

Arrow Yearbook

The 1993 Arrow staff worked hard to cover the events of the year and to record them within the pages of the yearbook. The theme, More than Words, was chosen because sometimes a picture is worth a million words.

The students who comprised the staff met at least once a week to plan, organize and put together the yearbook. A lot of time, dedication and hard work was put in by the students. The 1991 Arrow staff hopes that everyone enjoys the yearbook.

The Lycoming College Shotokan Karate Club was established in 1978 by Sensei George Vance, making the 1992-93 academic year it's 15th year at Lycoming. Senseis Bill Bubb and Charlie Russert join him in training the club members. During training, stress is put on overall character development, not just development as a fighter.

On occasion, the Lycoming Karate Club trains with the club from Penn College, and less frequently, the Penn State Karate Club.

Training is brought full-circle with testing, which can be done up to twice per year. A beginner starts with a white belt and moves through yellow, orange, red, green, purple, and brown belts, and concludes with black, which has nine dans, or degrees. The rank of sensei may also be obtained after training for many years and studying the Japanese culture.

The Karate Club not only equips one with the skills to defend oneself, but also provides the opportunity to develop one's character to the fullest potential. It has proven to be a rewarding and enriching experience for all involved.

BACCHUS (Boosting Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students) is an association that deals with current issues such as drugs, sex, and other moral choices concerning today's men and women. The club organizes projects for activities such as National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week and Safe Spring Break Week. All members work firmly to inform the college of practical ways of applying sound choices to their everyday lives.

Circle K emphasizes community service combined with fun, friendship, and the development of leadership skills. Nationally, it is the largest collegiate community service organization numbering over 10,000 strong. Here at Lycoming, we interact with the Williamsport community to help better the lives of those around us, as well as to enrich the experiences of our members. In the past, we've contributed our services to the local Habitat for Humanity, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, the Girl Scouts, Hope Enterprises, St. Anthony's Soup Kitchen, and the American Red Cross. Our members grow through Circle K with the gifts of helping others and lifelong friendships.

The Multi-Cultural Awareness group is a student run organization whose primary objective is to obtain and expand our knowledge of all cultures through the student body of Lycoming College. We will direct our purposes to learn about the social, political, economic, intellectual, and religious aspects of various ethnic groups; to create a closer bond among students at Lycoming College, by providing a rich cultural experience and encouraging social and personal interaction on and off campus; and to establish an environment which will aid the students of various cultures in their efforts to adapt themselves to Lycoming College, the city of Williamsport and the United States.

MULTI-CULTURAL AWARENESS

UNITED CAMPUS MINISTRY

The members of the UCM are not the "Bible thumping wacko" group you might expect. We started off our year with an all campus volleyball tournament. The group met regularly on Sundays for a home cooked meal and fellowship. We also participated in service projects especially at St. Anthony's Soup Kitchen. Other activities included a student-run ecumenical devotion service, retreats, women's Bible study, movie nights, dessert nights, a Halloween party, spiritual programming, our annual trip to the Hershey Bear's hockey game, and the First Annual Outdoor Coed Keg (Rootbeer) and Pajama Party!

Habitat for Humanity, a non-profit, ecumenical Christian based housing organization, builds affordable houses for those in need of decent living accommodations. This was the second year for Habitat on this campus, and it has been a great success.

The group on campus works with the local and national Habitat Affiliates to help alleviate homelessness in Williamsport and the world. The big event is the National Collegiate Challenge issued by Habitat International. Last year twenty-three members from our group went to Donna, Texas and this year, thirty members went to Homestead, Florida to help the victims of Hurricane Andrew.

HABITAT FOR HUMANITY

HABITAT IN FLORIDA

While down in Florida, the group worked on several sites and tents were set up at some of these sites for temporary housing. Thirteen houses were under construction in Florida city where groups worked on installing windows, roofs and fences. The group helped repair the Manfred Center with some other groups from Michigan, Minnesota, New York and Northern Ohio. Once again, we would like to thank everyone for their wonderful support.

The Student Association of Lycoming College (SALC) is the official student governing body of the college. Any questions, suggestions and grievances a student may have concerning Lycoming College can and should be taken to SALC.

This year, under the leadership of Jeff Al-Mashat, SALC accomplished many things. Among them were: extending gym hours, extending library hours, restarting the message board in the cafeteria, making changes in the cafeteria system, granting student requests concerning food service and solving many other student problems. SALC is representative of the entire campus and welcomes any and all requests, complaints or comments concerning Lycoming College.

Freshman Class Officers

Participation. It's the key to any successful organization. Teamed up with enthusiasm it yields an overwhelming sense of pride. The class of 96 epitomizes this participation. Students crowded into Skeath lounge for our first class meeting in August, armed with questions and suggestions — students who wanted to take their future into their own hands. They have. It was the class which voted for The Olde Main Malt Shoppe, the most profitable freshman fund raiser in Lycoming history. It was the class that elected to stage a semi-formal in mid-March; the attendance for a freshman dance was unprecedented. With nine hard-working representatives and four devoted executive officers leadership was certainly a strong attribute. The class of 96; a success story still in the making.

The junior class works in conjunction with SALC and is aided by four officers, President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer. The four officers of the class strive to represent their class in the process of raising funds and organizing service projects and activities.

This year, the officers sold carnations with the senior class officers for Parents weekend in the fall and sold Valentine chocolate kisses. The officers have also committed the class to collecting plastic recyclables around the campus buildings in association with LEAF and the new campus recycling program as a service project. In essence, the class is building up to reach their Senior year!

The graduating class of 1993 has made positive and rewarding contributions to Lycoming College over the past four years. The senior class officers were responsible for leading the class to a memorable senior year. Fundraisers and social events have been important aspects of our college career. Specific Senior events, such as the Geo's Party, The President's Ball and Commencement Weekend were all occasions that brought the class together a few last times to celebrate before going our separate ways. As a class, we feel we have left our mark by participating in the Senior Class Project which established a scholarship fund for a future Lycoming College student in the name of the class of 1993. On a more personal level, the Senior video captured our most significant memories. We are also very proud of the graduating seniors who excelled in academics, athletics and various activities.

A special thank you goes to Kathy Zeckman, our class advisor, and to the administration who supported us in our endeavors to establish what we believe to have been a successful senior year.

PUBLIC FORUM

The Public Forum of Lycoming College continued the tradition of sponsoring lectures for the Campus and Williamsport Communities this year. We were able to bring in several experts from outside of the Lycoming College Community this year, including Dr. Ginsberg with the help of the Political Science Department to speak on "The Philosophy of the Bill of Rights", Kelen Zsuzsa, a Hungarian economist spoke on the prospects for Hungary, Katherine Schneider of the CIA, Mr. Robert Hastings who spoke on "UFO's: the Hidden History," as well as several forums that featured local speakers. We strengthened our commitment to student leadership by vigorously encouraging all of our members to take active ownership in each of the forums. In all, including the Yolanda King lecture sponsored by several campus organizations, we hosted fourteen forums this year. The other topics included local and campus issues like racism, academic research, abortion, genetic engineering, and student government. We thank the strong support of each of the members this year.

Any time of the day or night, at least from 7 a.m. -- 2 a.m., WRLC was taking control of the air-waves with its own version of college radio. The programming ran the gambit of gospel to BBC, alternative and heavy metal with the longest hours of operation ever. The dedicated staff, of over seventy-five students, got to work the first week we were back and has been busy ever since. Having one of the largest staffs ever enabled WRLC to stay powered up over breaks and begin a summer weekend schedule. We also participated in MTV's Daytona Beach Get Away, experimented with live remotes, gave extensive coverage to Lycoming sports events, sponsored our own Rick Villamil as a Mr. Lycoming contestant, and also found the chance to socialize at a WRLC volleyball night. Our thanks goes to our advisor, Brad Nason, for his continual patience and support. WRLC — We Rock Like Crazy!

The newspaper has become completely computerized in the past year, utilizing three MacIntosh computers for its weekly layout and design. The Lycourier reporters worked hard each week to cover all campus happenings, including concerts, plays, security, faculty meetings and policy issues. The Lycourier boasts a growing sports section and a weekly music and movie review.

This year, the Lycourier won first place in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association's annual critique. This is the first time the newspaper has received this high honor and it will continue to strive for excellence in the future.

LYCOURIER

RA STAFF

The Resident Advisor staff of Lycoming College is proud to announce one of its most active and successful years. Besides participating in Community Service activities such as Adopt-A-Highway, the 30 RA's each sponsored community activities for their floors. These activities ranged from participation in the Red Cross Blood Drive to serving the homeless at St. Anthony's Soup kitchen. The staff also sponsored the successful campus wide forum where Deans Piper and Hogan, as well as President Douthat were present to hear student's concerns. The RA staff concluded its year planning programs to help resident students feel at home and part of the Lycoming College community in the Residence Halls.

RESIDENCE HALL COUNCIL

This year, the Resident Hall Council, under second year leadership of Randy Suffolk, worked hard at redefining the organization. The Resident Hall Council, made up of representatives from the residence halls, met bi-monthly to try to recruit new members and deal with the problems of the halls. To determine the areas that needed their attention, the Council surveyed random floors in the independent residence halls. They then tallied the responses and worked toward solving some of the problems and requests. In order to become more involved with the student body, the Council sent representatives to CAB and to SALC meetings. Still a building organization, the Residence Hall Council looks forward to a more active and a better role in the college community.

Commuter Student Organization

In our second year, the Commuter Student Organization had events for the commuters and residents, as fundraisers, and to aid the community. We had a pizza party, a luncheon, and Rock N Roast on the patio with free food and the band Ramsey performing. We raised money with a bake sale for the community, CSO donated to Habitat for Humanity (Lyco Chapter) and had a raffle to raise money to send to the victims of Hurrican Andrew. And finally, our most popular and successful events were for the children of the commuters, faculty, and administration. In October we had a Halloween Trick or Treat party and in April, The Easter Bunny came to visit the children at our egg and candy hunt.

Pan-Hellenic Council

The Pan Hellenic Council is the governing body for the four sororities on campus. The Council works to strengthen and promote harmonious relationships among Greek women, as well as striving for outstanding scholarship and service to the college community. The council is made up of 15 elected officers and representatives from each sorority. This year, the council worked to celebrate the quality of Greek life along with the Interfraternity Council.

The council has had several successful projects this year including: the first All-Greek Formal, collecting clothes for Wise Options, a presentation on crime prevention, and a stress workshop for Greek women. We have also spent many hours working with IFC to make the Greek system more exclusive. Finally, we had a very successful Spring semester adding a total of 36 women to the Greek system.

The goal of the Interfraternity Council is to take an active and energetic role in campus life as well as Interfraternity activities. This illustrious organization is composed of representatives from each fraternity on campus. So far this semester we have taken upon ourselves to improve greek life and make th greek system as a whole an essential part of Lycoming College. Working with Jerry Falco and other administrative personal we hope to accomplish such a lofty goal. The officers that have been newly elected are very willing to work hard and put forth the effort we need in bettering the relations with administration and the overall improvement of the greek system. All the greek organizations wish the new officers, I.F.C. reps, and house presidents the best of luck, we need it!

Inter-Fraternity Council

GREEK WEEK MEANS GREEK UNITY

The coming of spring marks an annual tradition for the Greeks at Lycoming College. Each year, the Greek fraternities and sororities meet on the Quad and in the pool for some friendly competition in unusual and interesting events. All week long, the fraternities and sororities compete in what is referred to as Greek Week.

For the second year, Kappa Delta Rho took the idea of wearing togas literally and we all wondered what was under those sheets. Following the march and the judging of the banners, all Greeks were invited to a barbeque outside of East Hall. For the next week, Greeks competed in some traditional events plus a few new ones. The Greek Sing was extended to a skit, where Alpha Rho Omega, again, swept the competition with a moving version of Van Halen's "Right Now." The field events included the keg toss, dizzy bat and capture the flag. The Greeks, also, tried their luck at bowling.

As usual, the highlight of the week was the pool events, especially synchronized swimming. Here Greeks performed routines to music in the water. And no one could forget Theta Chi's unbelievable routine! The swimming events included a relay, intertube race, corkscrew, life-vest relay and baggy drawers.

The competition was tough and very close throughout the whole week, but two organizations emerged on top. Greek Week 1993 winners were Alpha Rho Omega and Kappa Delta Rho.

Alpha Rho Omega was founded on April 1, 1981 with the purpose of creating a sisterhood dedicated to loyalty, individuality and unity.

Alpha Rho is very proud of its traditions and continues to grow. We have had two wonderful pledge classes this year, with the spring class being our Omega class, and we hope that they will keep us going strong. Change is inevitable but our ideals are firmly set and we are persistent to uphold them.

After a great deal of hard work, Alpha Rho has once again sustained the highest grade point average. And we still managed to have a moderate social calendar consisting of parties with our fellow Greek organizations and the Spring formal.

We also are very outgoing and strive to better the community with the many service projects that we hold. We volunteered with the Blood-mobile, and along with TKE, cheered up residents at Leader Nursing Home; as well as cleaning up a section of road for the Adopt-A-Highway foundation.

Basically, Alpha Rho Omega is the place for us! We may be small but our size keeps us unified, strong and together — making us a true sisterhood.

Alpha Sigma Tau's family of sisters and pledges live on the first floor of Wesley in a hall of green and gold adorned with their crest, panda bears and anchors.

Founded in Michigan in 1899, the Alpha Sigma Tau sorority has grown from the first chapter in Ypsilanti to over fifty chapters spread around the United States. When the 19 founders of Lycoming began the Gamma Pi chapter, the motto "Everything We Achieve Was Once Just A Dream" became the foundation for everything that was built. Today, forty-one sisters and pledges and ten alumnae have a place in Lycoming's rich Greek history in the name of Alpha Sigma Tau.

Throughout the year, Alpha Sigma Tau participates in community service projects as well as campus life. Dafodil Days and the Red Cross Blood drive have been the focus of service, while Tau's can be found supporting many campus-wide organizations.

As a national organization, we can travel to other Alpha Sigma Tau chapters in Penn. Mansfield, Bloomsburg and Lock Haven are located in our district and give us the chance to explore and create new relationships in the name of Alpha Sigma Tau.

Beta Phi Gamma is the first local sorority established on campus, founded October 13, 1976. Today, Beta Phi Gamma consists of thirty-eight sisters, along with three great pledges. Beta Phi Gamma is filled with a bunch of responsible, caring and enthusiastic girls involved with numerous campus activities and service projects.

We have participated in intramural sports such as basketball, flag-football, soccer and even water polo. Our service projects for both the community and campus include involvement in collecting food, clothing and toys for Wise Options and Purple Heart, hosting parties for those less fortunate children in the community, Daffodil Days, selling raffle tickets for the American Lung Society, Adopt-A-Highway and many others.

Beta Phi Gamma has been very active, along with service projects. We had a Christmas formal in December and another in the Spring, mixers with other Greek organizations on campus and VCR days and special dinners for just ourselves.

Beta Phi Gamma will continue to grow and be stronger. Along with our newly elected advisor, Dr. Kathy Ryan, our sorority will be closer than ever!

Founded November 7, 1977, Gamma Delta Sigma celebrated our 15th anniversary this past fall. We currently have 43 sisters and a very strong spring semester pledge class of 19.

Our fall semester was very eventful, particularly our Homecoming weekend. Once again, one of our sisters was crowned Homecoming Queen and many of our alumni returned to help us celebrate the past 15 years. We also remained active on campus and within the community through our service projects. We continued our commitment to the Special Olympics by serving as bowling aids at Faxon Lanes on Saturday mornings. We also raised money and supplies to aid Wise Options as well as the victims of Hurricane Andrew.

Our Founders Day Formal was held at the Days Inn this year and was, as usual, a great success in the eyes of all the sisters and the many returning alumni.

During our Spring semester, we were very busy as well. We held our Spring formal at the American Legion on March 12th and the following day, we held our third annual Brandy Sudol Auction. We also held a raffle for a weekend trip to the Poconos. All in all, we had a very successful and enjoyable year!

KAPPA DELTA RHO

Psi Chapter of Kappa Delta Rho made great strides this year. Many service projects included Daffodil Days, distributing fruit baskets to students during finals week and the major project — Adopt-A-Highway, which entails a two-mile clean up on Rt. 80 that continues over the summer and into the fall.

Refurbishing of the lounge was another project that took steps in the right direction this year, which included repairs to the fraternity copier in our library. The social aspect during the year included the annual "Back to Hell" party and the "Red Rose" formal. Both, along with other social functions, were successful and enjoyable.

Lambda Chi believes in quantity instead of quality and stresses EVERY MAN A MAN.

TAU KAPPA EPSILON

Tau Kappa Epsilon was founded in 1899 and in less than 100 years has become the largest international fraternity. The Mu-Theta Chapter at Lycoming was founded in 1969.

This year, the brothers of TKE were involved in service projects such as raising money for our national charity, the Special Olympics, with a bowl-a-thon at Faxon lanes; the blood drive and visiting the residents at the Leader Nursing Home with the sisters of Alpha Rho Omega. In the fall, we reclaimed the top spot among Lycoming's fraternities with the highest GPA.

TKE had its annual Homecoming barbecue outside East Hall and our traditional brothers vs. alumni softball game at Brandon Park. We had successful parties with all of Lycoming's sororities and welcomed nine new brothers to our fine organization.

Student Association of Mathematics

The Student Association of the Mathematical Sciences brings together any students with interest in mathematics to establish a relationship between recreation and math. In order to accomplish this goal, games are played at our monthly meetings to demonstrate that math is everywhere and is not to be feared. Visiting speakers and conferences also helps students understand mathematics and careers in math.

The club is now planning a campus-wide service to organize a list of new or used books for sale. This will make it easier for students who wish to sell their books and also help those looking for used books by having an organized list updated every week on computers.

The Society of Physics Students is an organization comprised of physics majors and nonmajors who share a general interest in the ideas and advancements of physics. SPS will again participate in the NASA sponsored project INSPIRE. During various shuttle launches the crew will be producing artificial electromagnetic radiation from an electron beam bombarding the upper atmosphere, producing an artificial aurora. The members of SPS will be recording data from these missions & reporting back to NASA.

Pre-Law Society

The Lycoming College Pre-Law Society offers support services to students interested in pursuing a career in Law. Students receive materials designed to help them better understand the Law School process.

The Pre-Law Society guides students to use resources provided by Lycoming College. The Career Development Center contains a large variety of materials designed to assist members on the undergraduate level. A efficient use of these resources enhances a students chance of succeeding in Law school.

The Criminal Justice Society is comprised of students who are majoring or minoring in Criminal Justice. Our group meets to discuss various aspects of the Criminal Justice field. In past meetings speakers have addressed topics ranging from the use of canines in law enforcement to the theories of police discretion in the enforcement of laws. The main goal of our organization is to keep interested students informed about the ever changing field of Criminal Justice.

Education Association

The Education Association had a wonderful year. We began the year with a fundraiser, making a record amount of money. Our speakers this year included a local principal speaking on teacher qualification and interview criteria, student teachers from spring and fall semesters, speaking about experiences, and a special speaker from the Pennsylvania State Education Association (PSEA).

As always, faculty and staff enjoyed our annual Halloween party, full of games, activities and story time. Many of our members participated in an off campus, community service, adult educating program as well.

The year 1992-93 proved to be a growing year for the Education Association, thanks to my fellow officers and dedicated members.

Pi Sigma Alpha

Pi Sigma Alpha is the National Political Science Honor Society. The Iota Nu Chapter at Lycoming College was founded in 1979.

On November 9, 1992, Pi Sigma Alpha, in coordination with the History and Economics Honor Societies presented "World Leadership In The 21st Century: The European Challenge." Speakers included Dr. Robert Breckinridge from the Political Science Department, Dr. Robert Larson from the History Department and Dr. Mehrdad Madresehee from the Economics Department.

On November 19, 1992, four new members, Melissa Brown, Nicole Kampo, Mark Rider and Paulette Schriner, were inducted into Pi Sigma Alpha.

On March 31, 1993, Kathy Best, Teresa Cutter, Hugh McElhenney and Howard Woodruff were inducted into Pi Sigma Alpha. The Keynote Speaker at the induction ceremony was Ms. Katherine Schneider, Deputy to the Chief of Public Liaison at the Central Intelligence Agency who spoke on the topic, "Intelligence In This New World Disorder."

Congratulations to all new members!

The Political Science Club was very busy this year. A very successful two day voter registration drive was organized and held on September 24 and 25. One hundred fifty seven absentee ballot request forms were filled out and seventy new voters were registered, with a combination of eight states being represented. Thanks for a successful drive go to not only the motivated students who participated and the dedicated club members who manned the tables for two full days, but to Professor Mary Wolf and Melissas Pinkerton for their neverending support and help.

On October 19, a student debate on the election issues was held with students presenting their respective candidates views and answering hard questions from the opposition as well as from the audience.

On October 28 and 29, club members attended an overnight trip to Washington, D.C. This trip was partially funded by the 1991 Berman/Sheffer Award the Political Science Department won for excellence in voter outreach. Highlights of this trip included briefings and tours of the Pentagon, Library of Congress, Central Intelligence Agency and The Supreme Court and visits to Capitol Hill, the Vietnam Memorial and Arlington National Cemetery. In addition, a reception with Lycoming alumni who live and work in the D.C. area was coordinated by Mary Wolf and the Alumni office.

On election night, November 4, a party was held in Jack's Corner to watch the voting returns on the big screen tv. It was a night of food, friends and fun (particularly for the Democrats!).

Psi Chi

Psi Chi, the National Honor Society, consists of members who have demonstrated superior academic achievement in the study of Psychology. The new members must maintain a certain criteria of being in the top 35% of their class, and also by accomplishing at least a 3.0 in their g.p.a. This organization brought in 27 biggest classes ever to join Psi Chi here at Lycoming!

The Psychology Club, made up of Psychology majors and/or minors, brings students together to enhance the study of their field. This past year, the Psychology Club has made some great advancements in the numbers of new members that joined. Our events started off with P.D.R.'s and advanced to our "big trip" to the local State Hospital at Danville for a tour of this mental health facility. We ended our year with a panel of speakers who gave positive insight into "Life after Lycoming" in the Mental Health field.

Joseph C. DeSimone was elected Chieftan 1993 by a vote of student, faculty and staff. The Honor's Convocation ended with President Douthat reading the citation listing his achievements and presenting him with the award.

COMMENCEMENT

It all began with Choices. This book is the foot in the door for every incoming freshman and the lifeline for those who have been around and are aware of just how difficult it can be to accommodate the system. Lycoming College publishes this catalog each year with the purpose of attracting high school students as well as informing the Lycoming veterans of just what they need to take, how exciting it is supposed to be, and how many thousands of credits must be achieved in what seems like a very short amount of time. While doing research on the college for this speech, I actually decided to sit down and read the stimulating information at the beginning of this book. After four years I figured it would most likely be appropriate. And much to my surprise, not only did I find Choices to be informative, but also highly entertaining.

Page one discusses the college and how it is dedicated to helping each student realize his or her unique potential. What it meant to me was, no matter how deranged this place can make you, we're behind you 100% of the way. Next is the mission of Lycoming College. Among my personal favorites is a list of goals for the students were, developing communication skills, fostering self-awareness, and cultivating an aesthetic sensibility. I have no idea what that is, but somewhere in the $60,000 dollars, I did it. But the best one has to be — to enable, ennoble and emancipate the human spirit while deepening commitment to those values that ungird civilization. Wow! With all of that to do in four years, it's amazing that we were still expected to take classes and remain completely sane.

Moving on to page two. Lycoming College says that most students will complete their program in four years. Those of you who went to May term summer, term, summer school and took 30 credits a semester just to be here today, I commend you for following the rules. Those of you on the lifetime plan, Choices not only exhorts you, but also tries to hide you as well. Included also on page two is a description of the scenery you'll find while fulfilling your stay. That include rolling hills, forest lands and providing the state with its best scenery. Guess they forgot to mention the eternal rain, snow and sub-zero temperatures — not to mention the squalls, perhaps one of the most intriguing vocab words I learned up here. Along those lines, Choices lists camping, hunting, and various outdoor activities which many of us did take advantage of. However, the book also encourages kayaking. Maybe it just wasn't a popular event because never once did anyone call me to go kayaking. However, that's not to say that it did not occur.

And that was where I almost had to stop reading. But before putting it down, my eyes fell on an important message that read: "Perhaps one of the most important qualities of Lycoming is its feeling of community." That is when I realized that Choices is only doing its job and the sense of community closeness that it discusses was exactly the reason why our experiences at Lycoming will be so memorable, beginning with freshman

The 1989-1990 school year marked the beginning of an adventure through time. Some of us remember our first nights as meeting new people, familiarizing ourselves with Skeath and Asbury Halls and being welcomed by the football players of Sigma Pi, since they were the majority of the people on campus when we arrived that first weekend. As the year progressed, Lycoming College realized it had a very special and talented freshman class on its hands. And not only were we new, but the college also inaugurated Dr. Douthat to the presidency, as well. Each sport had its highlights of freshman athletes; theatre, choir, and band brought in new talents and fraternities and sororities began to prepare for their newest and youngest members. Familiar sights to see included Wendy and Tammy hitting hockey balls with Melissa. Kevin, Clete, Drew, Bob, Dan and Duke heading for soccer, and so many football players too numerous to mention preparing everyday to face Coach G and another grueling practice in the heat. But it paid off, our freshmen helped bring our football team to a MAC championship. Who would've thought that, as seniors in high school, we would become familiarized with such unforgettable places as Two Boys, C-Mart, and The Pub, and that in just the first few days, we would meet people who would change our lives forever. But, regardless, the year came and went and it was time to say our first good-bye and prepare for the next step of our journey — being sophomores.

Coming back sophomore year was supposed to be an incredible time — losing the freshman status and really having pull at this place. Wrong. We weren't the babies anymore but we weren't old enough yet to get the credit we deserved. In fact, I remember being at Theta Chi one night and having someone welcome me in to sophomore psycho syndrome year. Not too comforting, seeing as it was only week two. So we trudged on meeting still more people and relying on our friends to keep us going. But when things were down we knew Dean Tomaino was somewhere close by to cheer us up and make us laugh.

Thanks Dean.

The college provided us with unique things to change the campus' appearance such as the making of the Heim Building, a brand new science facility, and bringing in an acting dean of the college. Student activities brought us Jerry Falco and Alpha Sigma Tau was born, adding diversity to female Greek life. Alpha Rho had one of its largest pledge classes ever that fall and this time the football team sent us to Florida to cheer them on. Anyone who knew anything about Lyco at the time, shared in the excitement and pride the Warriors gave to their families, friends and fans. That is one weekend that few people will ever forget. But sadly enough, we said good-bye to Sigma Pi, a place that many still say will never die. We also mourned the loss of Sean Walsh, a very dedicated man to the campus ministry who passed away that year. The months carried on, however, and the conclusion of the year proved most of us wrong if we thought that we knew everything there was to know about little Lyco. After all, our journey was only halfway complete.

Many of us entered our junior year with sadness of the passing of Lambda Chi brother and recent graduate, Marc Miller. But after a beautiful memorial, Marc still lives on through his art work. Happier times were indeed ahead, however, and our senior year didn't actually look so far away anymore. Some of us moved to Greek floors to fully experience fraternity and sorority life, while the rest of us were perfectly happy living in Rich or Crevier if we managed to get in. Football continued to dominate with Ron Wiest, Corey Sheridan, and Joe Emerick proving to be talented standouts, while Carl's and The Pub became the times of reality for most. The "Jewel G" mobile was still alive and kicking and Theta Chi and Alpha Rho had to adjust to new floors. Nursing majors began to realize why their field has such a demanding reputation and classes geared toward our concentrated field of study became more intense. SALC was still trying to make its lasting impression on campus while Eric Delker's editorials provided us with weekly entertainment and controversy. I also believe that this was the year when security was fully tested with the random deer on the quad. Student government elections were actually competitive our junior year and we prepared for Jeff Almashat, an incoming junior, to take on the role of student body president. The theatre brought us continued interesting performances with Charlie Brown and The Heidi Chronicles highlighting the year at very opposite ends of the spectrum. And that year the college brought us more surprises with yet another Dean of the College and a new Dean of Students. Although this may not seem to have been a stable environment, we were provided with the necessary guidance to get through. But by now, it looked as if the majority of those of us still here, were going to remain for the duration and the Class of 1993 unity started to take form.

Finally, senior year was here and for nine months straight, people were continually heard saying, "I can't believe it's almost over." After all of the complaining we did about fears of never graduating, it was so strange to be doing so many things for the very last time. The fall semester was again dominated by sports and theatre, as well as crowning Moe Duffy homecoming queen and beating Susquehanna one last time on Parents' Weekend. Our Class participation seemed strong and motivated with senior leadership dominating much of the campus' wide activities. But it wasn't until after Christmas when, for wasn't until after Christmas when, many of us, the idea of graduating and getting out finally sank in. The Senior Project kicked off the semester raising over $20,000 dollars for a scholarship in the name of the class of 1993. And I think this was also the time when Debbie, Wendy, Craig, and I realized why many people thought we were crazy to become the senior class officers. There was so much to do. Meredith Konight saved us by taking on the Senior Video to capture this whole year on film. First was the Geo's party which proved to be an amazing success for those of us who remember it, even if we did have an incredibly difficult time getting to classes the next day. The Brandy Sudol Auction at Gamma Delt was again a success and we had to bid farewell to Larry Wilcox who was not only the director of security but also a friend to many of us.

Joe DeSimone won the highest award for a student at Lycoming, the Chieftain, and several seniors made their friends and families proud at the Honors Convocation, as well as dinners and banquets held for sports, choir, band and other organizational activities. Greek week rushed in spring and presented us with Theta Chi's unforgettable synchronized swimming and Sean Manello doing a wonderful Sebastian imitation. But Gamma Delt's appropriate theme "These Are the Days" and Alpha Rho's skit at the beginning of the week will always be remembered.

And yes, the administration did it again by presenting us with another Dean of the College, another Dean of Students and a new director of security with many new security guards clad in combat boots and quickly getting nicknamed "the men in blue." But the change in the environment of the campus was the most obvious with more precautions taken and also stricter rules. Rules are things that always played such a key role here and it is safe to say that, since we were freshmen, rules have become not only more enforced but also more numerous than ever before. Our final senior meeting was held, graduation announcements were ordered and Senior Ball tickets were sold. Suddenly we weren't just saying goodbye but everyone else seemed to be saying good-bye to us. So many things have changed while we've been here. Yet through it all, those of you who only saw us during vacation or talked to us on the phone, may wonder how we fit in all of our classes, but somehow we managed and now, here we are.

Today is our day to look back on everything we've accomplished and the friends we made. Friendship played such a key role here and there are some so strong and made to last, that I felt they were worth mentioning — here's to you: Moe Hall & Krista Pellino, Nancy Ackroyd and Jen Kennedy, Lori Peloso-Julie Granatel-Fran Mazzucca, Krista Storlazzi and Laura Oels, Scott Richards and Jim Sullivan, Greg Duke and Fred Reiniger, Kate Phillipy-Kandice Kat-chur-Stacey Spear-Tammy Babish, Meredith Konight and Casey Demoss, Peanut and Kurt Shneck, Laurie Parkinson and Amanda Jones, Jenny Terhune-Rachel Breen-Tara Law-Merv, Karin Plummer-Heather Williams-Hillary Eigen-Lori Gramley, Jason Brevic and Jeff Borneman, Dean Tomaino and George Hetrick, Sue Corney and Ann Kroener, Wendy Picker and Moe Duffy, Kevin Beck and Aaron Coldren and the "Boston Bound" consisting of Debbie Norton, Katy Evers, Sue Colby and Lynn Kerrigan. That is to name only a few of the thousands of wonderful friendships we've made here. And to my two most special friends — Debbie Norton and Amanda Jones — you are so unforgettable and wonderful. I wish you much happiness and love always.

I would like now to dedicate this ceremony to another very special person and friend. She belongs to each one of us whether in our memories or here today. She is the one we each call Mom and although today is a special day for us, it is also a special day for her. Please join me in applauding our mothers who have guided us, supported us and loved us all these years. Thanks Mom, I love you.

And now, a poem to say goodbye — given to me by someone who means so much Thank you Rachael Breen.

NEVER SAY GOODBYE

As they walked into the room with satisfaction in their eyes with laughter on their faces, yet a tear held deep inside.

As they looked at each other they wondered what each will be,
they wondered what each will do,
but tomorrow they cannot see.

They look back through their memories,
they look back through the years,
they see a lot of laughter and recall some silent tears
it's so very hard to say good-bye

It's hard for them to let go, for each has a separate dream
as they run down a separate road.

They are not only friends but one great big family, trying so hard together to be the best that they can be.

As they leave and go on, they watch the time go by, But yet through it all, they never really say good-bye.

Best of luck — I'll miss you all very much. "These are the days to remember."

More Than Words

Four years ago — this is where it all began for many of us, this is the building where our first experiences with Lycoming started. Our college careers started at the Admissions House. Now, four years later, it is over. The Class of 1993 has been through alot since starting at Lycoming. During those four years, memories were made but none as special as those made during our final year — our senior year. And those memories are captured in this yearbook.

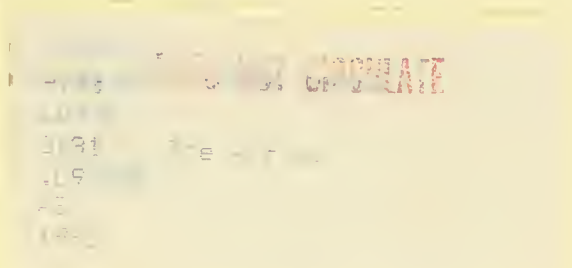

In my final message, I thank everyone who helped make this book. My staff was invaluable and I wish you all the best of luck next year. Jerry — I couldn't have done it without you.

And to my fellow seniors, I hope you enjoy the yearbook and I wish you all the best in everything you do.
